REGULATIONS ON FOURTH OF JULY

Burgess Says that no Fireworks May be Sold before July Third and None Used before July Fifth. Will be Strictly Enforced.

Burgess Eicholtz has announced his regulations for the celebration of Independence Day in Gettysburg. They are designed to give the greatest amount of safety to participants, and the least amount of inconvenience to merchants and picnickers.

Mr. Eicholtz states that no setting off of fireworks of any sort will be allowed before Monday, July fifth. This includes not only what are ordinarily known as fireworks but also the shooting of blank cartridges. The fact that the patriotic parade and celebration will be held here Saturday the third, added to the Burgess' determination not to allow fireworks in town on that day, and July fourth falling on Sunday makes it specially imperative that no shooting be done then. As the hour of midnight strikes Sunday night the restrictions will be off.

The Burgess, however, does not wish to injure the sale of fireworks, and merchants having them for sale will be allowed to dispose of them beginning on Saturday, the third. This will allow them to supply the trade who will come in from the county on Saturday and will also allow those picnickers who wish to start early Monday morning to lay in their supplies on Saturday. The police will be given definite instructions not to allow the setting off of any of these things, however, and those who purchase before Monday will have to restrain their desire for an early celebration.

Regarding the kind of fireworks permitted in the borough Mr. Eicholtz states that any kind may be used except sky-rockets and fire balloons. Persons buying these and desiring to "send them up" will have to take them to the edge of town outside of the borough limits and, in addition, must set them off on the side of town where the wind will take them away from, rather than over Gettysburg.

It is believed that Mr. Eicholtz's plan will meet all requirements for safety and convenience, and at the same time not interfere with the enjoyment of the usual celebration of the day, which he hopes to have observed here in as safe and sane a manner possible without spoiling the youngsters' pleasure.

CUT HER THROAT

Nurse at County Home Makes Unsuccessful Attempt at Suicide.

Despondent for some unknown cause, Mrs. Charles Strausbaugh, night nurse in the insane department at the County Home, cut her throat with a razor about one o'clock Tuesday afternoon and was not found by her husband until five hours later. Her condition is not regarded as serious. The act was committed in her room and between the time of cutting her throat and being found Mrs. Strausbaugh tried to sew the wound with ordinary needle and thread. Dr. Diehl, the Home physician, was summoned and he used nine stitches to close the wound.

HARD LUCK

Gettysburg Loses Services of Another Catcher through Injury.

That catching is a dangerous pastime was again demonstrated on Wednesday when Mahaffie had a finger broken and the Frederick catcher was hurt. Monday, Jarosick had his hand split and the Hagerstown catcher had to be relieved. Mahaffie, though pluckily finishing Wednesday's game, will not be able to catch for several days at least. Kane or Bigler will be called upon to work back of the plate. The Patriots are certainly having their share of hard luck but they have something like 66 more games to play which allows them ample time to recover.

ANNOUNCE THEIR SUMMERSCHEDULE

First Mail Train on Western Maryland will not Arrive until after Half Past Nine. Pen Mar Evening Train again Appears.

A number of changes are announced by the Western Maryland in their summer schedule which goes into effect on Sunday, June 20. They include the establishment of the evening Pen Mar train. The Pittsburgh-Baltimore express is continued on this line, the morning train east arriving at 5:50 and the night train west at 11:22.

The train east now arriving here at 8:39 a. m. is changed to 9:39 a. m., a change that will be very unwelcome to business houses who depend on this train to bring a large amount of the morning mail. The train will run from Highfield to York and will be a daily except Sunday train.

The morning train west from Baltimore to Highfield is changed from 10:09 to 10:16. It will be run daily.

The afternoon train now due here at 3:44 and running from Highfield to Baltimore is changed to 5:51 p. m. It will be a daily train as at present.

The evening train west from York to Highfield is changed from 5:38 p. m. to 6:56 p. m. It will be a daily except Sunday train.

The schedule, it is noted, gives two trains each way between Baltimore and Highfield, and one train each way between York and Highfield.

LECTURE

Comparatively Few Hear Unusual Address by W. C. T. U. Worker.

(Contributed)

The lecture by Mrs. Dorothy Knox Livingstone—we give the full name to identify this particular Mrs. Livingstone—was the finest we have had in Gettysburg, but some of our best people, who evidently are afraid of being convinced of righteousness, truth and a judgment to come, by a woman, were noticeably absent.

Those who heard her, however, were amply repaid for the sacrifice of a few minutes of the weekly prayer meeting and can pray more fervently hereafter for having heard her.

The men present promised themselves to have her in Gettysburg again, when an effort will be made to work up the county to insure a worthy audience for one of the most talented and efficient speakers in the ranks of the National W. C. T. U.

Her address embraced the reforms in consideration all over our country—from Maine to California—and showed a familiarity with legal, social, economic, and political situations, that is incomprehensible to an ordinary brain worker.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Hagerstown Building is Guttled by Daylight Fire.

Hagerstown had a very disastrous fire on Wednesday when the old engine works was gutted. The loss will amount to about $20,000, partly covered by insurance. The burned building was owned by the Cumberland Valley Railroad Company.

In a short time the interior of the building was a mass of flames. The first floor was occupied by the Duplex Brush Company. Its loss is estimated at about $6,000. The second and third floors were occupied by the Hagerstown Mantle & Furniture company and its loss will be about $8,000. The loss of the Cumberland Valley railroad was estimated at from $10,000 to $12,000.

W. M. GOES DRY

No Drinks but Soft Ones will be Served on Trains.

On and after June 30 there will be no more hard beverages served on any of the Western Maryland Railway trains. This is due to the fact that the road runs through many dry states and counties where licenses cannot be had. It runs up into West Virginia, for one state, where there is a law against selling liquors on trains or anywhere else. For some time past Western Maryland trains went through West Virginia with the spirit lockers closed. So after the 30th, only soft drinks will be sold in the dining cars and buffet cars.

SUMMER MONTHS PROMISE WELL

July to Have Three Events of Special Interest. Tourist Business Likely to be Fine during the Remainder of the Year.

Gettysburg will have its full share of summer attractions this year, from the number of events already booked for the months of July and August, and from indications now presented.

The return of the Marine officers school on July 11 will mark the opening of the various activities. About thirty young lieutenants will be here for six weeks, and will tour the various portions of the country in this neighborhood in periods of map making. The visit of the Marines in other years has always been marked by a number of events in which they participated, and the new class will be welcomed upon its arrival here.

Scarcely a week after this school opens the Chautauqua period will begin and for a week Gettysburg will have its afternoon and evening sessions of pleasant and profitable entertainment. Prominent lecturers and musical talent of recognized worth, together with the usual number of entertainers, appear on the program.

Toward the end of the month the Lutheran Summer Assembly will meet in Gettysburg, the opening of this coming upon the final days of the Chautauqua. These meetings have increased in attendance each year and the enrollment this summer is expected to go considerably above the hundred mark.

Summer excursions are in prospect on the railroads. The Blue Ridge resort section is to have one of its most successful summers and will contribute its share of Gettysburg visitors every day. Automobile tourists are increasing in number every week, and not a day passes but that cars from at least six different states may be seen here, the license tags showing tourists from Maine and California, from Florida and Minnesota.

The personally conducted tours of the late summer and early fall are now being planned and the single day tour will be run as usual. All told, Gettysburg faces a pleasant and profitable summer, which, according to the almanac is due to begin next Monday.

MINISTER'S SON DROWNS IN POND

Son of Presbyterian Pastor, well Known in the County, is Caught under Old Tree. Difficult to Recover his Body.

Unable to free himself from the limbs of an old tree which pinned him to the bottom of the pond into which he had jumped, Theodore Miller, fourteen year old son of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Miller, of Airville, was drowned Wednesday afternoon.

The boy in company with two elder brothers, started from home about 2:30 o'clock to go in bathing. They decided that they would take their swim in an old mill pond. Paul, the oldest of the three brothers, was the first to jump into the water. Theodore soon followed. Although he could not swim he plunged into the pond and did not come up again. Paul was quick to realize that something had happened to his brother and he made a desperate effort to reach him and get him out, but he could not locate him. The other brother, Thomas, had not jumped into the stream and was too frightened to do so after he saw what had happened to Theodore.

Paul and Thomas quickly spread the alarm that their brother was drowned and a number of men hurried to the scene and began a search for the body. It was finally found necessary to dynamite the pond and through this means the body was loosened from the branches of the old tree at the bottom of the pond and brought to the surface. It is believed the boy dived under the tree and was unable to extricate himself.

The body was taken to the home of the boy's parents in the evening. Young Miller was a favorite among the boys in the community and his tragic death has brought sorrow into every home there. A particularly sad incident is the fact that his parents are on a trip to Sewickley, in the western part of the state.

They were informed of the death of their son by telegraph and will return home at once. Rev. Mr. Miller is a United Presbyterian minister.

FRIEDMAN CASE IN JURY'S HANDS

Conflicting Testimony on which Jurors Must Rule. Nori Admits his Guilt in Carlisle Indian School Matter. The Testimony Concluded.

Whether J. G. Nori, an Indian, or Dr. Moses Friedman, former superintendent of the Carlisle Indian School, told the truth on the witness stand is the question that a jury will have to decide in arriving at a verdict in the charges of graft brought against Doctor Friedman. All evidence was in when court adjourned at Williamsport Wednesday evening.

Nori pleaded guilty to embezzlement and destruction of documents and then took the stand as the principal witness against the former superintendent. He declared that he began tampering with vouchers and other public documents only after the advent of Dr. Friedman as superintendent, and said he had destroyed certain receipts at Friedman's direction.

Judge Witmer drew from Nori a statement that Friedman had access to the safe and had he desired the destruction of the papers he could have destroyed them himself and was not compelled to ask Nori to do it. When the Government closed, Senator Beidleman, counsel for Friedman, moved for binding instructions to the jury to acquit the defendant, but the motion was denied.

When Doctor Friedman took the stand he strongly denied all charges of wrongdoing. He described at length the business methods of the school and his duties as superintendent. He declared that he had refused to sign vouchers made up by Nori, the Indian chief clerk, until they were carefully checked. It was brought out that Nori was separated from his wife and that he was under an order of court to pay $15 a month for the support of the woman and their two children, now living in Connecticut.

CYCLIST HURT

Cross Continent Trip Stopped by Collision with Motor Truck.

Curtis Peck, nineteen years of age, Jersey City, in a collision between the motorcycle he was riding and an auto truck of the Gulf Refining company, sustained two broken ribs on the right side of his body and lacerations of his right leg and bruises and contusions of the body. With him was Raymond Isley, who escaped unharmed. They were on their way to Cheyenne, Wyoming.

The accident occurred Wednesday in front of the house of Henry Stambaugh, on the Gettysburg pike, near Abbottstown. Dr. Eugene Elgin, East Berlin, who was summoned, took the young man to the York hospital in his automobile. The trans-continental trip has been abandoned.

Peck and Isley were riding toward Gettysburg. Isley sounded his horn and the truck of the refining company turned out, but the driver, J. W. Dillon, was not looking for another motor-cyclist, and as Isley passed he turned the truck to the middle of the road. On account of a rut Peck could not turn aside and crashed into the rear of the truck, being thrown against the can carrying board.

The injured youth was taken into the Stambaugh home, awaiting the arrival of the physician. Isley will remain at the Stambaugh home until Peck recovers sufficiently to return home.

ZEPPELIN KILLS 15 ON ENGLISH COAST

Same Number Injured in Latest Air Raid.

19 DEAD IN BADEN CITY

Grand Ducal Palace Struck and Much Other Damage Done in Karlsruhe by French Aviators.

London, June 17.—A Zeppelin airship visited the northeast coast of England and dropped bombs. Fifteen deaths are reported from the district in question and fifteen persons were wounded. Some fires were started by the projectiles from the Zeppelin.

This information was contained in an official statement made in London.

Never before has an air raid on England taken such toll in human life. This is the third air attack in a little over two weeks. May 31 was the date of the first attack on London from the clouds, with four persons killed, and on June 6 the east coast of England was the scene of attack, with five fatalities.

Giant aeroplanes of great carrying capacity are in process of manufacture for the British government, according to an announcement made in the house of commons by H. J. Tennant, under secretary of the war office. This statement was in reply to the suggestion by a member that machines of this character were needed adequately to deal with raiding Zeppelins.

The Exchange Telegraph company has received a dispatch from its Amsterdam correspondent, who says a message has been received in Amsterdam from Berlin that Count Zeppelin, inventor of the famous German dirigible balloon, is seriously ill with bronchitis and confined to his bed at Stuttgart. The count has not been able to keep an appointment to visit imperial headquarters.

19 Killed in Karlsruhe. Karlsruhe, Baden, June 17.—Nine persons were killed and fourteen seriously wounded, while many others were slightly injured during the attack made upon this city by a fleet of French aeroplanes. The people remain calm, but are incensed because of the attack upon an open town.

Much Damage Done. Geneva, Switzerland, June 17.—Travelers who arrived here from Karlsruhe give the number of persons killed during the aerial attack upon that city as twelve, in addition to which many persons were injured. Two French aviators also were killed, and the other two occupants of the two aeroplanes brought down were made prisoners.

The travelers say the bombardment caused a panic in the city. The people, awakened by the bursting of bombs, rushed half clothed into the streets. Two bombs struck the Grand Ducal of Frederick II. palace, destroying one wing and damaging the other. The arms factory, railway station, railway tracks and switches also were damaged.

ITALIANS ROUT Foe

Victory in Glacier Combat in East Trentino District Reported. Rome, June 17.—A battle at the East Trentino glacier has ended in a victory for the Italian troops, the Austrians being completely routed, according to a dispatch from Chiasso.

The Italians have undertaken a new invasion of Austria through Stelvio pass. Furious fighting is in progress there, with the Italians attacking the summits of the pass, which are still in Austrian hands and are defended with heavy guns. The Italians are attempting to seize the railway line running northward through the pass from Bormio.

Italian troops are within twenty-five miles of Toblach, through which passes the only direct railway link of communication between Vienna and the Tyrol. The Italians on the line north of Tyrol d'Appezzo are now preparing to attack Franzensfeste, the strongest Austrian fortress in the Tyrol Alps.

HE SANK THE LUSITANIA

Captain of German Submarine Decorated for Mysterious Feat.

London, June 17.—The German submarine U-21 sank the Lusitania, according to the Elsinore, Denmark, correspondent of the Evening Star.

"It has been learned here that the decoration of the order Pour le Merite, recently bestowed upon Lieutenant Hersing, commander of the U-21, by the Kaiser, was in recognition of the torpedoing of the Lusitania," says the Star's correspondent.

Pope Warns Austria? Rome, June 17.—Pope Benedict, it was reported, has informed Austria that should a hostile air raid result in damage to church property in Rome or to the residences of church dignitaries, the Vatican would consider it a grave incident.

COLONEL E. M. HOUSE.

Adviser of President Returns From Europe to Make Report.

© 1915, by American Press Association.

More or less secrecy surrounds the movements of Colonel Edward M. House, confidant and reputed envoy of President Wilson. Colonel House has just returned from a visit to Berlin, Paris, London and other European cities. He will report to President Wilson before the end of the week and tell of conditions as he found them abroad. His name has been mentioned as a possible successor to William J. Bryan as secretary of state, but the rumors are not credited. Colonel House consented to pose for this picture, and it is the first time he has been photographed in fifteen years.

RUSSIANS FALLING BACK IN GALICIA

Petrograd Admits Forces Have Withdrawn.

London, June 17.—In the eastern arena of the fighting the Russian forces still are slowly and stubbornly retreating.

The latest official report from Petrograd admits the withdrawal of Russian troops across the Galician frontier into Russian territory from Czeronowitz, at a point between the Dniester and the Pruth.

The report sets forth that fresh German forces brought up near Jaroslau under cover of heavy artillery fire, compelled the Russians to retire for some distance on the right bank of the river San, after three days of desperate fighting.

On the remainder of the eastern front the Russians apparently are contenting themselves with repelling the attacks of the enemy, excepting on the left bank of the Tiszenitz and Stry rivers, tributaries of the Dniester, where they claim to have taken numerous prisoners and machine guns and to have recaptured villages wrested from them by the Austrians.

General von Mackensen has telegraphed the German emperor that he hopes to capture Lemberg before July 1, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Amsterdam.

Mosciska, to the east of Przemyśl, has been captured by the Austro-Germans and, according to German contention, the Russians are falling back south of the railroad connecting Przemyśl and Lemberg.

U. S. TO LOOK INTO ENVOY'S IDENTITY

It Is Said Dr. Gerhard Was a High German Official.

SECRETLY IN THIS COUNTRY

To Probe Charge That Bernstorff's Envoy Was Head of Kaiser's Army Supply Department.

Washington, June 17.—Published charges that Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, for whom the United States arranged a safe conduct with the allies that he might return to Germany with a personal message from Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, was in reality Dr. Alfred Meyer, chief of the supply department of the German army, who had been secretly in the United States buying munitions of war, are to be investigated by the state department.

Simultaneously another version of the tale—that Dr. Alfred Meyer, while not passing as Meyer-Gerhard, has been in the country and aided with the latter for Christiania, incognito, also will be looked into.

State department officials and members of the diplomatic corps in Washington knew of the tale only from published reports. They recalled, however, that at the personal request of Count von Bernstorff, former Secretary of State Bryan asked the British and French ambassadors for safe conduct for Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, a representative of the German Red Cross, who was returning to Berlin to carry a personal message from the count after the latter's audience with President Wilson in the midst of diplomatic negotiations with Germany.

M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, at the time inquired closely of Meyer-Gerhard's identity, and state department officials recalled also that Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, had suggested that there was evidence of other activity of Gerhard than Red Cross work.

The upshot of it was, however, that the state department, at the request of Count von Bernstorff, gave a letter. "It was a letter," said Acting Secretary of State Lansing, "that was given at the request of the German ambassador, stating that Dr. Meyer-Gerhard, who had been in this country as the representative of the German Red Cross, desired to return to Germany."

German Embassy Brands Story False

New York, June 17.—The German embassy denied newspaper reports that the United States was tricked by agents of the German government in connection with the furnishing of safe conduct to Dr. Meyer-Gerhard, Red Cross envoy to this country.

Daniel von Haimhausen, counselor of the German embassy at summer headquarters at Cedarhurst, L. I., branded the published reports as being false.

The charge that Dr. Meyer-Gerhard was in reality Dr. Alfred Meyer, chief of the German army's war supply division, he called "pure tommyrot."

KAISER TO O. K. EXECUTIONS

Court Martial Death Sentences in Belgium Must Be Endorsed by Him.

Amsterdam, June 17.—Every sentence of death by a court martial in Belgium hereafter must be endorsed by Emperor William before the prisoners are executed, according to a telegram received by the Tyd from its correspondent at Maastricht.

The writer of the dispatch intimated that Emperor William telegraphed these instructions on learning that eight citizens of Liege had been executed for alleged espionage, and that twenty others were in prison charged with the same offense.

There was anxiety as to the probable fate of these men until Emperor William's order was posted beside the list of names of those who already had been shot.

Four Hurt in Powder Explosion.

South Bethlehem, Pa., June 17.—A powder explosion, the origin of which is being investigated, occurred at the Redington fuse plant, where munitions of war are being made for England. Five Years For Cashier.

Williamsport, Pa., June 17.—Lynn Maxson, former cashier of the Union National bank at Scranton, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of embezzling $13,000 before Judge Witmer in the United States court. He was sentenced to five years in the Lackawanna county jail and to pay a fine of $1000.

GERMANS FORCED BACK NEAR YPRES

British Take More Positions in Belgium.

London, June 17.—Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the Continent, reports that the British have captured the German positions to the north of Hooke for a distance of 1000 yards, and that they captured and then lost a line of German trenches at Festubert.

Hooke is three miles east of Ypres and Festubert is northwest of La Bassée.

General French's statement is as follows:

"Early Wednesday morning in the neighborhood of Ypres we successfully attacked the enemy's positions north of Hooke. We occupied the whole of his first line of trenches on a front of 1000 yards and also parts of his second line."

"By noon 157 prisoners had passed to our rear. The German counter attack has been repulsed with heavy losses."

"Wednesday evening we captured the German front line trenches east of Festubert on a mile front, but failed to hold them during the night against strong counter attacks."

"The enemy exploded five mines on different parts of our front, but none of these caused any damage to our trenches and only one caused any casualties."

GREEKS INVADE ALBANIA

Italians Aroused by Concerted Action With Servians.

Rome, Ga., June 17.—A Greek army has invaded Albania, according to advice received from Avlona.

Greek troops, commanded by Colonel Zentos, a cousin of M. Venizelos, former premier of Greece, has occupied territory in Albania, half way between Berat and El Bassan.

Serbian forces also have occupied part of Albania. Considerable indignation has been expressed in Italy over these actions, inasmuch as Italy has claimed sovereignty over part of Albania, expecting to obtain it at the end of the war. It has been alleged in Rome that Greece and Serbia have agreed to partition the country among themselves.

Street Car Strike Will Go to Board of Arbitration.

Chicago, June 17.—The forty-eight-hour street car strike is over.

It was settled by an agreement to arbitrate and soon the familiar roar of the elevated trains and the gongs of the surface cars were heard again.

The appearance of the first elevated car, some hours after the elevated trains were running, was the occasion of a demonstration in the downtown district.

The settlement was reached after an all night conference behind locked doors in the mayor's office, attended by Mayor Thompson, the aldermanic mediation committee, the grievance committee of the unions and the presidents of the traction companies.

FREDERICK SHOWS REAL BASE BALL

Visitors Demonstrate their Right to First Place in Blue Ridge League. Patriots Make them Hustle to Win Wednesday Game.

To the big crowd of enthusiastic fans who watched Frederick defeat the Patriots on Nixon Field Wednesday afternoon the reason for the Hustlers being in first place by such a substantial lead was quickly explained. The Frederick outfit plays ball from start to finish, they have a lightning infield, know how to bat, are veritable speed-kings on the bases, and snatch every opportunity to take advantage of their opponents' misdeeds. Add to this a good pitching staff and you come pretty close to having a real team.

Frederick took the game 4 to 3, after nine innings of exciting play in which the Patriots had the lead, lost it, and then came back near the finish with two rallies which did everything but tie the score. Bill Stair was in the box for Gettysburg and, though the errors column of the box score shows only one misplay for the Patriots, he failed to receive the support he deserved. Failure of the infield to go after grounders allowed them to go for hits, errors in judgment appeared, and he had to work his best to pull the team out of bad holes.

Gettysburg scored in the first, the eighth and ninth. In the initial inning Williams doubled and Mahaffie scored him on a single. In the eighth Stair singled and scored when Kane fled between left and center and the two fielders collided. Two were out in the ninth when Plank hit for two bases and Bream rolled one to Porter at short who juggled the ball and threw wild to first, Plank scoring and Bream taking second. Herrill was rushed in as a pinch hitter but he fanned and the game was over.

Frederick made their tallies in the second, fourth, fifth, and sixth innings. Orrison rolled one over second and Barnhart followed with a single in the second inning. Morrison sacrificed them a base and Orrison scored when Mahaffie let one go through. In the fourth Bream interfered with Oyster in getting Lamar's fly and Lamar scored on Morrison's hit. In the fifth Stair hit both Agnew and Boyne, and Agnew scored on Lamar's hit. Barnhart hit a homer into the high grass in the sixth and Frederick's scoring was at an end.

SEES WAR MAKE FOR SIMPLER LIFE

Ferrero Sure Conflict Has Wrought Miracle.

ALL EUROPE NOW CONTENT

Great Italian Historian Finds Struggle For Extravagance and Pleasures Is Gone, and He Confidently Believes It Will Not Return In at Least Two Generations.

The European war has demonstrated that the giving up of many pleasures, necessities and comforts that modern civilization has created and established is a much easier thing than any of us thought one year ago, writes Professor Guglielmo Ferrero in an article on the war's effects on future modes of living.

Many needs that seemed as imperious and tyrannical as a second nature we have discovered are hardly even necessary to our being, and a little shakedown liberates us from them as from dead skin that peels and falls off. Man's nature is much less dependent on those things that modern civilization would have us believe.

When the danger of a great war was spoken of many said it was not possible or would be of exceedingly short duration, not more than a month or two at most, because otherwise there would be a revolution. Every one reasoned in that fashion, and facts have shown that they were all wrong.

Europe is all in arms, but in each country there has never been more calm tranquillity. Almost all Europe is eating coarse bread that one year ago country laborers complained of so bitterly when forced to use it.

Everybody Now Resigned.

Up to one year ago the city streets were never sufficiently lighted, nor were trains ever numerous enough or fast enough. Now the people are still and resigned.

So if the European war has filled Europe with horrors, ruin and hate it has also made men more easily contented. In each nation, far away from the firing lines, men and women are working with a tranquillity that has not been known for some time, and they no longer complain of destiny, although that destiny is harder.

That furious desire to possess and enjoy that made men impossible to satisfy, has all of a sudden disappeared. The French have learned the virtue of patience, and the Germans have learned the virtue of sobriety. And who would ever have dared predict it? The world has changed.

How can this most singular of phenomena be explained? Is it a sort of miracle? Perhaps human nature is changed. No; it has rather found itself. Many people are today glad to be freed of many responsibilities and obligations that were forced on them by an opulent peace—glad to be able to live simply, as they like, earning less, spending less, so working less.

The people have taken all the more readily to this more simple and restful life because the change has been universal. Until a year ago few, indeed, were the wise ones with enough strength of will not to annoy and torment themselves with the thought that perhaps they were not enjoying themselves as much as their neighbors.

The war has forced everybody, or almost everybody, to live simply, so nobody now wants many things that a year ago seemed indispensable to his happiness.

Pace, a Mental Disease.
Until two centuries ago all religions and all philosophies taught that man had to know how to hold his desires within the bounds of moderation; that he should not presume too much on his own power; he should limit his aspirations; he should live simply, consume less riches, treasure the gifts that God and nature had placed at his disposal. Since science, America, steam and the idea of liberty have increased man's confidence in his own power he has overthrown all these principles.

So was born the strangest, the most singular mental disease with which the world was ever visited. There never was a time in history richer, more knowing or more powerful than that in which we were born and which lasted until Aug. 1, 1914. All the most glorious ages of the past were poor, ignorant and little compared to the twenty years that preceded the European war. We had everything—wealth, knowledge, liberty, peace, safety, order. We should have been happy.

The European war was needed to cure man of this malady. It is not too much to suppose that the effects of this moral and mental revolution will last in Europe after the war, that one or two generations at least will now be disposed to live more simply and be contented more easily with that which destiny allows. The generations that have seen and gone through the terrible trial in Europe cannot help understanding that in the modern idea of earning and spending, of enjoying without limit, there is something forced that doesn't respond to the deep needs of human nature.

SMUGGLING WINS DUTCH SYMPATHY

Government of Holland to Take More Drastic Measures.

GETS NO PUBLIC SUPPORT.

Traffic With Germany Grows—Custom Men Find Tobacco That Won't Smoke Because It's Rubber and Suspect Cargo of Oranges Contained Far More Copper Than Juice.

Smuggling from Holland to Germany has assumed such proportions that the Dutch government is considering drastic efforts to stop it, says a dispatch from The Hague. The administration finds little support from the people.

Germany pays gold for everything she can buy in Holland. The Dutch business man does not see why he should not exchange his wares for gold. He always has sold to Germany and he continues to do so as much as he can despite his government.

The British government keeps close tabs on the border situation. Every shipment of forbidden goods that goes into Germany is usually brought to the attention of the Dutch government by England. This annoys Holland considerably. The Dutch government regards its land trade with Germany as wholly an internal question and one which must be left to its solution without outside suggestion.

Holland will continue to export to Germany all home produced articles which she can spare. Nearly 1,000 tons of meat go into Germany every day. Great quantities of cheese go directly to the commissary of the German army. Nearly two-thirds of Holland's vegetable crop continues to be exported to Germany.

Traders Are Warned.

The Dutch government has sounded a warning to Dutch users of the Netherlands overseas trust, which on behalf of the government promises that any goods consigned to it will not be re-exported. The administration has appealed to the patriotism of the Dutch shippers to help maintain this institution which enables the government to maintain a low standard of prices for all commodities. Several violations have placed the government in an exceedingly embarrassing position.

Three plots to smuggle rubber into Germany were discovered. It is suspected that several consignments slipped through.

In one case a great consignment of tobacco reached Amsterdam for transshipment to Germany. A custom inspector found that the "tobacco" was 90 per cent refined rubber. The rubber was seized and the consignor fined $10,000.

To prevent border smuggling Holland has established a cordon of soldiers on the German and Belgian frontiers. There are armed guards at every road. Every train that goes into Germany is searched. But it has been quite impossible for the Dutch to patrol the vast bog districts along the eastern frontier, and wagonload after wagonload of contraband enters Germany through there.

The sinking of the Dutch steamer Medea by a German submarine has caused Dutch sentiment nearly to reach the fighting point. The captain said that his papers, which had been taken by the submarine commander, showed the cargo to include nothing but oranges. But now it is believed that the oranges covered a cargo of copper intended for Germany.

Traffic Is Heavy.

The Amsterdam Telegraph gives weekly reports of Dutch trade with Germany. A recent report states that the traffic was exceptionally heavy. The imports from Germany consist largely of goods bound for the United States; also coal, briquettes, coke, cement, pig iron and toys. The exports to Germany include large consignments of potatoes, meat, butter, cheese, eggs, tropical fruits, taproot, arrowroot, bananas, tobacco, raw cotton, old iron and an eastern root, the flour of which can be utilized in the preparation of bread.

Many railroad cars ostensibly conveying freight from Holland to Denmark and from Denmark to Holland, it is said, are mysteriously uncoupled and disappear while passing over the intervening German territory. Dutch fishing boats, too, are often seized by German patrol boats and taken into German ports, whence they are released after their cargoes have been unloaded, to the evident satisfaction of the skippers.

The gains to be secured are so tempting that the efforts of the authorities have been rendered futile. A reward of 10 per cent of the value of goods seized in illegal transit is now offered to the soldiers, and this has had such effect on their watchfulness that captures of smugglers are becoming more frequent.

BUTCHERS TO MAKE SHELLS.

Men at Smithfield Market, London, to Give Four Hours a Day.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 men who are employed at the Smithfield meat market in London have volunteered to work four hours a day in turning out munitions of war.

The market is to be closed two hours earlier than at present on four days of the week so as to help the men bear the increase in their working hours.

Sage Tea Turns
Gray Hair Dark

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

LOVE in a HURRY

By GELETT BURGESS
ILLUSTRATED BY RAY WALTERS

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Hall Bonstelle, artist-photographer, preparing for the day's work in his studio, is reminded by Floodie Fisher, his assistant, of a party he is to give in the studio that night, and warned that his business is in bad financial shape.

CHAPTER II—Mr. Doremus, secretary and justice of the peace, calls and informs Hall that his Uncle John's will has left him $4,000,000 on condition that he marry before his twenty-eighth birthday, which begins at midnight that night.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. T. M. Royaltan calls at the studio and Hall asks her to marry him at once. She spurs for time, but finally agrees to give him an answer at the party that night.

CHAPTER IV—Miss Carolyn Dallys calls and Hall proposes to her. She agrees to give him an answer at the party.

CHAPTER V—Rosamund Gale, artist, calls. Hall rushes her into an immediate marriage, but she, too, defers her answer until the evening. Floodie Hall has ordered trouble delivered at the house.

CHAPTER VI—Floodie tries to show Hall a certain way out of the mixup, but he is obtuse. Jonas Hassingbury, heir to the millions in case Hall fails to marry on time, plots with Floodie to block Hall's marriage to any of the three women before midnight.

CHAPTER VII—Floodie arranges to have Hall's three intendeds meet at the studio as if by chance. Carolyn and Rosamund come in first and compare notes. They think Hall is perhaps going crazy.

CHAPTER VIII—Mrs. Royaltan comes in and much feminine frowning ensues in which Floodie uses her own foul adroitness.

CHAPTER IX—Hall comes in and the ladies retire for conference. Hall is worried lest they confide in each other, but Floodie sarcastically reassures him. Alfred, the janitor, comes in with the story of the queer legacy. The ladies' alliance to humiliate Hall dissolves and they retire to plan war for the $4,000,000 prize.

CHAPTER X—Successive telephone messages from the three ladies inform Hall that he is accepted by all three. Desperate, he asks Floodie to save him from the three-headed dilemma by marrying him. She refuses, and goes with Alfred, who has long been an humble suitor, to get a marriage license.

CHAPTER XI—Jonas arrives at the party. He proposes to Floodie, who declines and recommends him to try his luck with any or all of the three ladies. Rosamund arrives and gives Hall a bad quarter of an hour with her lavish endearments.

CHAPTER XII.

Guests were coming in bunches, now, and kept Hall so busy for half an hour that he had no time to plan how he should escape from the other two women with whom he must inevitably have matrimonial converse. So far, he was not particularly anxious. Rosamund he thought he could dispose of somehow, putting her off till Floodie should change her mind; and from Carolyn Dallys and Mrs. Royaltan he feared little. He would trust, at any rate, to the inspiration of the moment. With four millions—and Floodie—he didn't much care what they thought of him. It was a caddish trick, perhaps, but—four millions! The end would have to justify the means.

So, handsome and elegant and popular, witty and well-bred, he laughed and gossiped with his guests, started the dancing, introduced one to another, showed his color prints, and between times, watched the mousy girl in white who had so suddenly assumed an extraordinary importance in his life.

Floodie, merely bowed to and patronized by most of the guests, had discovered an unexpected friend in Mr. Doremus. He, finding her his only acquaintance, had stuck to her like a burr. Floodie liked him. At a one-step he could not cut much of a figure, but seated in the office with Floodie, where she could keep an eye on Alfred and the caterer, it was not long before she felt impelled to make him her ally. With all his elephantine wit and his manners of the old school, Mr. Doremus treated her in a jocular, fatherly, indulgent way that inspired her trust. And, that evening, Floodie had dire need of a coadjutor. She began to give him her confidence, bit by bit, watching his face more than listening to his replies, and decided that she could trust him; he had sympathy and tact. When, at last, after many interruptions, her story was told, Mr. Doremus took off his misty glasses and wiped them.

"Miss Fisher," he said soberly, "if I can help in this crisis, let me implore you to tell me how."

Floodie got up slowly, and looked into his kind blue eyes. "Would you mind coming into the studio for a few minutes?" she asked. "I'm so afraid we may be interrupted or overheard. I want to tell you something."

Mr. Doremus offered her his arm, and escorted her into the studio.

By eleven o'clock both Carolyn Dallys and Mrs. Royaltan had come. They had, in fact, arrived together, having shared Mrs. Royaltan's limousine. This preconcerted action was caused less by friendship than a mutual suspicion. The two ladies dared not trust each other out of sight, and each for fear the other might gain an advantage, sacrificed her own desire to be beforehand with her plans.

The party was now in full swing. Some twenty were in the reception room, dancing or watching the dancers. The evening grew in life and merriment. Mr. Doremus, back from his interview with Floodie, was infected by the revels. He blossomed suddenly and unexpectedly into hilarity, and encouraged and stimulated by the gayer of the young actresses, became, in spite of himself, the center of the party. The company did not let him get till Alfred Smallish, business man, appeared in the doorway.

"Supper is ready—I mean—er—supper is served!" he announced, and coughed into his hand.

The three soubrettes who had been pelting Mr. Doremus with pinks, now surrounded him, bound him with evergreen garlands and carried him off enslaved, through the office, where Floodie was presiding over tables of salad and sandwiches, into the reception room, where they enthroned him on an old Spanish chair, and waited on him like hours. The gentlemen rushed back and forth with plates and napkins; everybody began to talk and laugh. Beer bottles popped.

Hall was now becoming desperate. It did not seem at all so easy as he had expected. If only Floodie hadn't got her back up so foolishly! Well, he must, at least, be off with his old loves before he was on with the new. And, for that, he must have the answers of the two women. He left the company and walked into the studio, now deserted, to look at the clock. Heavens! It was already half after eleven. Something would have to happen in a hurry, if—

Carolyn Dallys appeared in the doorway, smiling. She was wearing corn color, in a costume no man could have described five minutes after he had seen it. Carolyn's clothes were always not only original but characteristic of her.

She sauntered in, and dropped upon the couch, to look up at him good-naturedly. Hall's hopes rose. It was going to be easy, thank heaven. She didn't at all have the smile of a prospective owner.

"Well, Hall," she began, "you don't seem particularly anxious to see your blushing bride. I had almost begun to think you were deliberately avoiding me."

"Avoiding you! Nonsense, Carolyn!" Hall laughed easily and tossed her a box of cigarettes. "Really, I've been so confoundedly busy with all these people, and—"

She broke in placidly: "Well, you're not busy now, are you?"

Hall began to be afraid. "Oh, no, of course not. Why?" He watched her as if she were about to strike him.

"Well, then, I've made up my mind, Hall."

"What do you mean?" he asked, and assuming a carelessness he was far from feeling, he walked to the table and took up a flower, idly.

"Why, I told you over the telephone, didn't I? Look pleasant, Hall," she said; "it's yes." I've decided to accept you."

Hall grew faint. It was not alone the words that alarmed him. It was the cold-blooded tone in which they were uttered. There was a deliberateness, a fixity of purpose in it that threatened his complacency. Carolyn still maintained her usual jocular manner, but there was something keen and steely beneath it that he had never before felt. He rose to meet it with all his skill at acting.

"Lord, Carolyn," he exclaimed, walking up to her impatiently, "you didn't really take me seriously, this morning, did you?" He burst out into forced laughter. "Well, that is funny; think of you—all women—getting caught like that! It's perfectly absurd! You can't make me believe you thought I was in earnest, you know! That's absurd!"

So the agile trout, when he first feels the hook in his mouth, thinks that by a bold struggle he can regain his freedom, and thrashes the pool with hectic energy. But Carolyn, with all her humor, was a shrewd cool fisher of men. Calmly, surely, she kept her line taut. She had struck four millions! Not for a moment had she lost her composure. Slowly she spoke; she almost drawled.

"Why, yes, I did, Hall! Surely, you seemed to have a lucid interval, you know, this morning, and I believed every word you said. And what's more," she added, "I believe it now!" Lazily, to and fro, her feather fan was sweeping.

Hall floundered again, wildly. "Oh, come on, Carolyn! Can't you take a joke?"

"Yes," she answered smilingly, "when I see the point of it. Will you kindly explain?"

The point, Hall well knew, was in his own mouth. He dashed up and down the room fretfully, making fervent gestures. Poor fish! He still imagined he could get away from the hook. "Good heavens, I have explained, haven't I? Why, I only wanted to hear what you'd say!"

"Well, you've heard; I say 'yes!' Now what?" She took a cigarette from the table and gracefully lit it, puffed out the smoke, and yawned.

As she drew in her line thus, his frenzied struggles were getting shorter, but more violent. "Oh, hang it all, Carolyn, you know I was only fooling, of course! Why, we were laughing all the time, you know that! I had no idea you'd ever accept me! Do you mean to tell me that you are in love with me?" he asked bittily.

"Not at all! I see no need of lying about it, whatever. But you certainly do amuse me." Her eyes danced.

"Well, I should say it was hardly enough to accept a man simply because he amused you!" This was the best Hall could do, now; he was getting winded.

"On, yes," she replied jauntily, "on the contrary, I'm quite sure that I"

"Well, Why Don't You Kiss Me, Hall?"

shall want to be amused all my life—especially when I'm married."

"Heavens! Do you consider that we are engaged?"

She looked at him with surprised eyes. Her fishing was approaching a climax. She began to wind in her line to short length, speaking incisively. "See here, Hall, you're not trying to get out of it, or anything, are you?"

"Now, Carolyn, let me explain just how it is—I'll have to tell you something—I want to—hang it—you make it so damned hard for me—that I mean is—"

Carolyn rose and looked him in the eye. She laid her hand on him; and, soft as was its touch, he felt as if it were gripping him like a handcuff.

"Hall, see here! Are you trying to get out of it, or aren't you? Just tell me that!"

"Why—why, I think you're carrying the joke a little too far, Carolyn, that's all—honestly I do!"

Carolyn now had him at the edge of the boat. She jerked him in with a laugh. "My dear old Hall," she said, and her voice was honey-sweet, "I'm carrying it only far enough to want to wear that ring you bought today for me. Where is it?" She actually began to feel in his waistcoat pocket.

He backed off in terror. "I haven't any ring!"

Carolyn smiled. "Well, never mind. We don't want anyone to know just yet, anyway, do we? Rings can wait. Now come over here and sit down, and I'll tell you exactly what we're going to do." She proceeded to lead him, too dazed to resist, toward the couch where they sat down together.

"Now be brave," she said, smiling. "I'll let you hold my hand. You do just what I say, and you'll never regret it. I hate engagements; they have neither the excitement of courtship, nor the satisfaction of matrimony. So, at just nine o'clock tomorrow morning, you are going to call on me and we'll toddle down to a justice of the peace. We'll just cut out the white veil and downcast eyes and everything. All you'll have to do is to put a gold band on my finger; and my share will be to say 'I will' and become Mrs. Hall Bonstelle. What's the matter?"

Hall was staring toward the door. "My cousin Jonas," he said.

"Oh, bother!" Carolyn's eyes shot fire. "Just as we want to arrange everything!"

Jonas Hassingbury, tall and gaunt, eating a lettuce sandwich, strolled in, as cool and self-possessed as the most experienced cotton leader in town. He was perfectly sure of himself; without wealth, or power or social training, he was blessed with an egoism that a king might have envied. Jonas had never been embarrassed in his life.

Hall looked at him, for the first time with relief, and rose.

"Miss Dallys," he said, "let me present my cousin, Mr. Hassingbury."

Jonas put the sandwich behind his back, and bowed. Carolyn looked up at him, annoyed.

"Dallys?" Jonas queried, "never heard of that name before, to my knowledge. What be ye, Portuguese?" With the grace of a veteran, he dropped down beside her on the couch.

At any other time Carolyn would have welcomed his quaint charm. But her eyes were now for Hall, and she was anxious. Her answer was vague.

Jonas, however, did not appear to notice it. His work was plain. He had to make himself attractive, and get rid of Hall. He launched forth, therefore, on a description of the town of Branford while Carolyn yawned behind her fan.

At the first pause Hall broke in. "By jove, Carolyn, I've got to get some photographs in my room I promised to show Mr. Doremus! Cousin Jonas will take care of you all right, Carolyn. He's a great man for the ladies!" and with this slid out of range of her protest.

Carolyn pulled herself together to make the best of it. This yoke must be got rid of at once. She leaned toward him with ardor.

"Oh, Mr. Hassingbury, do you really think I'm pretty? You must have known so many beautiful women—in Branford!"

"Yes, that's right!" said Jonas, with unctious. "I certainly have, miss. Why, I've buried three wives already! I reckon I know pretty near as much about women as anybody."

"Then you're just the man I've been looking for!" said Carolyn. "I want you to help me; will you?" She jumped up eagerly.

He rose also. "What appears to be the trouble?"

"There are two women here just trying to have your opinion of. Come out with me and I'll introduce them to you, and let you talk to them; will you?"

"You bet I will. Just let me see 'em! I guess if anybody can size 'em up, Jonas Hassingbury can!"

And with that he followed her out into the other room, and Carolyn delivered him over to Rosamund Gale.

TRIESTE RIVAL OF NAPLES IN BEAUTY

City Long Desired by Italians Nestles In Lovely Bay.

HAS HISTORICAL SETTING.

Almost Every Inch of Coast Now Once Again the Object of War Has Been Marked in Interest in Real Life, Romance and Song For Many Generations.

As seen from the sea Trieste, the recapture of which was one of the reasons why Italy entered the war, is wonderfully reminiscent of Naples. From the semicircular bay the city rises in terraces of much harmony, beauty and picturesque composition. Conspectuous on the left shore, the waters of the bay lapping its foundations, is the Villa Miramar, which recalls one of the many tragic chapters in the history of the Hapsburgs, for it was built by Maximilian, brother of the aged emperor of Austria, the man who became emperor of Mexico, where he was put to death. His widow, the Empress Carlotta, her mind shattered, still survives in an asylum in Belgium.

From an architectural and linguistic point of view the city of Trieste is entirely Italian, all streets and shop signs being in that language. It is not until one goes into the outlying districts that signs in other tongues are found, and then they are not German, but Croatian.

Shows Vivid Contrast. After turning the end of the conspicuous cape of the peninsula of Istria, Pola, Austria's chief naval station, comes into view. Here at once is found a vivid contrast between past and present, for, while the harbor is full of warships, there rises in the view in the center of the town a great Roman amphitheater, which Italy has ordered her aviators and gunners to spare.

It is in Pola that your eye begins to be struck with the violent coloring of the native costumes of Dalmatia, one of the few parts of continental Europe in which these are faithfully adhered to. They are brilliant in the extreme, blues, reds, yellows and green predominating, while in their entirety they have a character which is thoroughly distinctive.

Zara, the luxurious Zadera of the ancient Romans, is the real beginning of Dalmatia and here again there are remains of the architectural glories of the days when Christianity was still in its infancy.

There was also a flourishing Byzantine Zara and a medieval one, most of which remains today, save along the sea front, where modern structures have taken the place of the massive walls that frowned down upon the crusaders as they passed along in their ships fashioned in the famous arsenal of Venice, the same upon which some Austrian bombs fell a few days ago. It is this same historic shipyard, by the way, which forms the setting for Caruso's great aria "Cielo e Mare" in "La Gioconda."

Is Link With Past.

Another of Zara's links with the Venice of a long gone day is found in the sculptured lion of St. Mark, which still watches from over the Porta Marina and has been watching, the Italians say, for the coming of the descendants of those who proudly placed him there.

Within the shelter of the hundreds of islands which dot the coast you sail then to Zobenico, on the shores of such a landlocked harbor that it is naturally defended from attack. Here, too, the winged lion is to be seen above the city's chief portal. Zobenico is likewise a naval station and has already figured in the news.

Spalato, the next port of call, although of no military or strategic importance, is nevertheless one of the most interesting towns of Europe, for almost its entire population dwells within the walls of a palace built in the fourth century by the Emperor Diocletian to serve him as a place of luxurious retirement when he had grown weary of empire. He dwelt in this superb structure only nine years, faithful to his old gods to the end, although over in the Rome which he had left Constantine had been converted to Christianity and that religion had become the official one of the Roman world.

From here southward to Trau is to be found the most smiling and beautiful stretch of the Dalmatian coast, while further along there is seen Ragusa, a walled promontory which reminds you of details of a Maxfield Parrish picture; it seems so much of the imagination and so little of reality. For centuries this place was a well-administered republic until wiped out by a stroke of Napoleon's pen.

Finger Print Love.

"Why do you think you'll be happy if you marry that young man, daughter?" asked the father.

"Because, father, we've had our finger prints examined and they almost match," was the sweet young thing's reply.—Youkers Statesman.

In the jungles and fields, in our factories, etc., 104,000 men are employed to meet the demand for Goodyear tires.

No other tire commands anywhere near such favor. And this spring has shown, in sales to dealers, an increase of 52 per cent.

Extra Values

The reason is, we fortify our tires. We give the best that others give, plus five exclusive features. In costly ways, employed by no one else, we combat:

Rim-Cuts
Blowouts
Loose Treads
Insecurity
Punctures
Skidding

And we never skimp. Despite all price reductions, Goodyears are better than ever. Lately we have added

Prices Down

Goodyear has made in about two years three great price reductions, totaling 45 per cent. The last was on February 1st. Our matchless output enables a value which no other maker can duplicate.

Goodyears mean less trouble, less upkeep. That is proved by our exclusive features, our dominant place, and the swelling Goodyear tide. We urge you to join this army. Any dealer will supply you.

The Flux

In metallurgy a flux is something used to promote the fusion of metals.

In the business world newspaper advertising is the flux that fuses production and demand.

And the fused products are sales, satisfaction and profits.

Nothing else is quite like newspaper advertising.

It acts almost instantaneously. It cuts out all in between. It is comparatively inexpensive.

Some men have had unfortunate experiences in advertising because they used the wrong mediums. All newspaper advertising is of some benefit but Adams County has never had the benefit of a paper like The Times before. The fact that dozens of million dollar corporations with a country wide distribution have used and do use it now should be sufficient approval for the local man who doubts its benefit.

MARINES READY TO LAND IN MEXICO

300 Ordered on Cruiser to Sail For West Coast.

THEY ARE FULLY PREPARED

President Wilson is Considering
Three Plans to Adjust Mexico's Troubles.

On Board U. S. Cruiser Colorado,
San Diego, Cal., June 17. — Admiral
Thomas B. Howard on the flagship Colorado expects to sail from San Diego for the Yagui valley, Sonora, Mexico, with an expeditionary force of 300 marines, under the command of Major McKelvey, fully equipped with machine guns and artillery and prepared for eventualities.

The cruisers Cleveland and New Orleans, now at Guaymas, are prepared to take aboard refugees if necessary.

Wilson Has Three Plans.
Washington, June 17.—Three plans for the adjustment of Mexico's troubles are being considered by officials of the Wilson administration. They are:

First—Mediation of the troubles of the warring factions.

Second—Endorsement of a plan of American capitalists who are willing to support a man or group in Mexico if they get the moral backing of the United States.

Third—Armed intervention.
Little hope is expressed that Carranza and Villa will be able to get together and end the warfare in Mexico.
It is believed that President Wilson will have to back up his recent statement with a stiffer argument if he hopes to better conditions in that country.

Should Carranza refuse to enter into negotiations with Villa, the administration may undertake to persuade the first chief to lay aside his hatreds and participate in a conference with the representatives of the convention government. Should its good offices in that regard prove a failure officials say the time will then have arrived for the president to show his full hand.

CUPID AT COMMENCEMENT

Senior President Elops and Another
Grad Announces Engagement.

Washington, Pa., June 17.—The sensational elopement of one senior and the totally unexpected announcement of the engagement of a second, both undergraduate principals hailing from the same city, Detroit, Mich., caused a perfect storm of excitement at the 114th commencement at Washington and Jefferson college here.

The graduate who disappeared with a pretty sixteen-year-old Washington school girl is John E. Spiegel, president of the 1915 class, and W. and J.'s most famous athlete. He married Miss Katherine Wrenshall, member of one of the most prominent and aristocratic families in the section.

The senior who added to the gayety of commencement by announcing his engagement is Reginald Bovill, star football player, who will wed Miss Celia C. Chesley, a leader in the younger social set.

AIRSHIP ALARMS ROME

Reported Kept in Cache Near City,
Has Frightened Inhabitants.

Rome, June 17.—A suspicious aero-plane flew over Rome a few nights ago.

All the lights of the city were put out immediately the presence of the aerial visitor became known, and on ever hand questions were asked, but not satisfactorily answered, concerning the mysterious aircraft.

A partial solution of the mystery is given by the Messaggero, which publishes the following:

"Our enemies have succeeded in bringing an aeroplane to a point near Rome, where it is being kept in hiding. It has already flown over the city."

Neutral Ships Torpedoed.

London, June 17. — A Copenhagen dispatch says the Swedish steamship Verdandi, of 947 tons, was torpedoed off Christiania sound by a German submarine. A German cruiser took the crew aboard and shelled, without sinking, the Verdandi, which was timber laden. Advice from Stornoway, Scotland, say the Norwegian steamship Duranger has been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine off the Hebrides Islands. The crew of twenty-one arrived at Stornoway.

New U. S. Rule For Baggage.

Washington, June 17.—The interstate commerce commission ruled that under the Cummins law a person may make one declaration of value to cover his baggage, even though it consist of several pieces. The commission also held that so far as it is concerned, railroads may collect on delivery for excess baggage above the hundred pound free allowance.

Woman Ill, Hangs Self.

Williamsport, Pa., June 17.—Despondent because of ill health, Mrs.
George F. Miller wrote a note to her husband and then hanged herself from the dining room door.

HOPE OF NATIONS LIES IN CHURCHES

Mr. Taft Pleads For Unified Religious Aims.

Philadelphia, June 17.—An eloquent plea for world peace, with a united church to aid nations in staying the hands of rulers about to appeal to the god of wars, was voiced by former President William Howard Taft at the forty-third annual commencement of Swarthmore college, before a representative assemblage in the natural auditorium on the picturesque college grounds.

When the present struggle in Europe is ended, the former chief executive believes, the evident trend of international public opinion will be toward a league of nations whose interest in the maintenance of universal peace will make them recognize the advantage of a union against war and of the assertion of the right to prevent one part of the world from involving the universe in the horrors being witnessed today.

"The Church, Civilization and War" was the subject of Professor Taft's address, and his message, while directed to members of the Society of Friends, emphasized the importance of the church generally from the standpoint of successful secular government and the promotion of a return of fraternal feeling when the sacrifice of life abroad shall have ceased.

of sweet milk add one teaspoonful of soda, one of salt and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Stir in enough white cornmeal to make a thick batter.
Spread half an inch thick in a buttered baking tin and bake in a moderately hot oven until it has a crisp brown crust. Brush the top with melted butter and serve hot.

Roquefort Salad Dressing.

Put a good sized piece of Roquefort cheese into a bowl. Add some salt and paprika. Make this into a paste, using a fork to stir. Pour in some olive oil and continue stirring the oil and the cheese paste together. Add a little vinegar. In cold weather you can use more oil than vinegar, and in hot weather more vinegar than oil.

Tomatoes En Casserole.

Stew three large tomatoes in water.
Pour off the water and strain through a sieve. Season with salt and pepper.
Sprinkle generously with dried bread cubes which have been browned in butter. Put in a casserole and bake until done.

SKIRT MUST HAVE FLARE.

taffeta and puts especial emphasis on the flare effect.

There is a well-developed revolt against the clinging skirt. All of the new models show a decided flare, especially below the hips. The circular model shown here is made of chiffon taffeta, 3 1/2 yards 36 inches wide being required for average size.

The skirt proper is cut on a fold of material, but because of the extra width it is necessary to lay the pattern for the plecing on an open width of the goods. The front of the yoke rests on the fold, to the left of the skirt, while the back is arranged on the open material with the plecing.

After cutting the yokes are joined as notched, after which the lower edge is turned under on slot perforations so that the yoke can be lapped on to the skirt section to small "o" perforations.
Too much stress cannot be placed on the necessity of having the notches, the center-fronts and back edges even.
The stitching should be done about 1 1/4 inches from the folded edge. For the last touches close the back seam from large "P" perforation in skirt section to lower edge and finish edges above for pocket.

The belting used should be about 2 inches wide and is stitched to position underneath the upper-edge of the skirt to give it support.

If one yields to the temptation to add a touch of decoration to the skirt there is nothing that could be used more effectively than braid.

Fashionable circular skirt with three-piece yoke. It is made of chiffon

Pike Shooting in Scotland.

The killing of a fish by a sword by a lieutenant of the Royal Engineers receives much publicity. It may not have been hard to do, for pike often move sluggishly, and on fine warm days they have a habit of basking on the surface. In Scotland people shoot pike regularly, the corpses being brought ashore by retriever dogs. Bu in Scotland they shoot several things that in England we kill in other ways.
Foxes, for example.—London Chron-

Question Cleared Up

Gettysburg Readers Can No Longer
Doubt the Evidence.

Again and again we have read of strangers in distant towns who have been cured by this or that medicine.
But Gettysburg's pertinent question has always been "Has anyone here in Gettysburg been cured?" The word of a stranger living a hundred miles away may be true, but it cannot have the same weight with us as the word of our own citizen, whom we know and respect, and whose evidence we can so easily prove.

F. G. McCammon, Gettysburg, says: "I first used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago and I still take them occasionally although I seldom need a kidney medicine. I suffered for quite a while from weak kidneys and a painful back. I tried several remedies and doctored, but with little success until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy rid me of the pains and aches."

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNERHunting For Diamonds.

About 1,000 two-inch tickets are used in this game, says Scouting. These are marked with a blue pencil in the shape of a diamond, and numbers ranging from one to thirty are marked inside the diamonds. These are supposed to be diamonds worth so many dollars—if a diamond has a figure nine in it, it is worth $9.

Another lot is marked with the diamond only, without the figures; these are smaller "diamonds" and are worth only $1 each. The third lot are left entirely blank and are supposed to be diamond quartz, being worth only 25 cents each.

The "diamonds" are scattered all over the woods, in the branches of trees, among prickly bushes, in pools of water and other hiding places. The game commences at a whistle signal, the troop starting from different ends of the woods and working every inch of the ground hunting for the "diamonds."

The patrol finding "diamonds" of the greatest total value is declared the winner.

The Golden Robin.

Among the most brilliantly dressed, as well as sweetest singing birds that summer anywhere in the United States is the Baltimore oriole, or golden robin. The nest of this beautiful bird is very interesting, and displays great skill in the making. In shape it resembles a long pouch, and is swung hammock fashion from two twigs at the extremity of a lofty, drooping branch. It is formed of vegetable fiber and wool, closely interwoven, then securely sewed in place with very strong stitches. The thread used for the sewing is usually long horsehairs, though, especially if the nest is within close range of civilization, bits of string, thread or silk floss are used. The mother bird does the building, while her mate searches for and brings the material.

Conundrums.

What goes most against a farmer's grain? The reaping machine.
What relation is that child to its own father who is not its own father's own son? His daughter.
What does a young lady do when she gets into church? Looks for the hims (hymns).
What bents a good wife? A bad husband.
What is the best thing out? A conflagration.
Why is life the greatest of riddles? Because we must all give it up.
Why is a lady's dishabille like a postman? Because it's a morning wrapper.

Telegraph Bee.

Here is a game for boy scouts on a rainy day in camp. Let the scouts arrange themselves around a table with a telegraph sounder on it. One of the scouts operates the sounder and sends letters in the Morse code to the other scouts, each in turn. If a scout fails to know the letter he is placed at the end of the line. In order that all the boys may take part it is best for the operator to send letters slowly to the tenderfoot, faster to a second class scout and fastest to a first class scout. The line will be continually changing, and the boys are sure to be interested.

FREAK OF THE TIDE

Curious Phenomenon That Occurs in the River Trent.

FURIOUS RUSH OF THE AEGIR,

Like a Monster Tidal Wave the Water From the Sea Sweeps Up the Stream With an Angry Roar, Flinging its Foam High into the Air.

"Ware aegir! Ware aegir!"

The river Trent has been flowing out to the sea for hours, leaving long stretches of brown mud glittering in the light of the setting sun. It is a calm summer evening, and we sit waiting and listening on one of the old wharves of Gainsborough, Lincolnshire. The cry is taken up by every boatman, who shouts it again upstream—a strange, eerie warning.

Several small boats are now pushing off into midstream to avoid the mass of churning water which breaks on the foreshore. A group of children add to the tumult with a shrill cry of "Wild aegir! Wild aegir!" which they consider a much better rendering than "Ware aegir!"

By craning forward we can see it now, rounding a bend of the river by the shipyard. The first wave is big and smooth, stretching right across the river, with a swirl of angry water at each side; next follow five or six big rollers, which roar and foam along, leaving masses of broken water in their wake. These are called the "whelps."

Presently we shall see the force of these "whelps" when they reach those big, unwieldy, square nosed barges—whelp, by the way, are called "keels." There is one such swinging at anchor in midstream just opposite to us. For the last half hour the old keelman has been lolling about the deck smoking his clay and looking idly at the water.

Now he is alert all at once, and, knocking the ashes out of his pipe, he gives a turn at the windlass to tighten the anchor chain. After a glance along the deck to see that all is secure, he looks back up the river. He is calculating where the aegir will carry him to.

There is another barge higher up the river, and as yet nobody has stirred on board. The old man has noticed it, for he shouts, "Ware aegir, S—y lad!" and a young fellow jumps up the hatch and runs to the tiller.

The distant swish has increased to a roar now, and a feeling of intense excitement grips us as we see a small boat rise up on the first wave and disappear for a moment in the hollow. Up again she rises, right into the froth of the "whelps." Another moment and she is through into calmer water.

See! The billow dashes like a monster tidal wave against a wharf and splashes high up into the air with a roar and smother of white foam. Now it has reached the "keel." With a groan and rattle of chain she rises to the wave and is carried along with it, but not very far, for the anchor holds fast and she swings slowly round.

The keel is broadside on now, and the creamy "whelps" dash right over her deck as she rolls in the trough of waves, but as quickly as it takes to tell she swings stem on to the current, which is now rushing upstream with tremendous force, and will continue to do so for two hours or more until high water, when the water lazily returns toward the sea.

The aegirs are not all as big as this one; some are a mere swell about a foot high. The best time to see them is in the spring and autumn, when the equinoctial tides are big on the coast. Just below Gainsborough the aegir is seen at its best, as it rushes along some of the longest reaches of the Trent.

This curious tidal phenomenon only occurs on one or two other rivers in Great Britain, the Severn being one of them, where it is known as the "bore." Those who have seen it, however, say that it does not equal the aegir in any way.—Wide World Magazine

I wish I knew my letters well,
So I might learn to read and spell;
I'd find them on my pretty card
If they were not so very hard.

Now, it is crooked, don't you see?
And G is making months at me,
And O is something like a ball,
It hasn't any end at all.

And all the rest are—my, so queer!
They look like crooked sticks—oh, dear!
Nurse counted six and twenty more;
What do they have so many for?
